To cherish the Christian standards and ideals of Trevecca Nazarene College, and to enshrine them in the hearts of every son and daughter, has been the purpose of the

DARDA OF 1937

This purpose will have been accomplished, this dream realized, if in the future years this book shall cause someone to live again the days "all chastely golden, with joys all too fleet;" or lead someone to catch anew the true Trevecca spirit.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

A significant class history is very difficult to write. Inevitably each member of the class of '37 will renew his past two years according to his own feelings, recalling vividly certain joyful occasions and completely forgetting others. Still there are some events in our lives at Trevecca which suggest the substructure of that life as a whole. This is the history which we would write.

On September 19, 1935, there arrived on the campus of Trevecca twenty-nine distinguished high school graduates, but after going through the bewildering experiences of matriculation and arranging of classes, we were transformed into humble green freshmen.

How exciting were the first events of college life! First, on October 3, came the faculty reception, at which time we were formally presented to the faculty and upper classmen. After this came many more occasions almost as important.

In the same month of October we organized our class with Mattye Foster, President; Neil Richardson, Vice-President; Lois Blackburn, Secretary; Virginia Ayers, Treasurer; and Professor L. C. Parsons, Sponsor.

With the regular routine of classes, examinations were here almost before we knew it. A few days before Christmas, 1935, our examinations were finished and we were on our way home for the holidays.

By January, 1936, we had begun to regain some of that feeling we had lost so suddenly on the first day we were on the Trevecca hill, for not only had our class been recognized by the seniors, but we had been made to feel that we were really a part of the school.

Amid the struggles of the freshmen year only five of our number fell by the wayside. Twenty-four struggled bravely through the year.

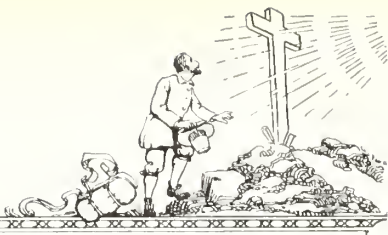

In September, 1936, we returned to Trevecca with the realization that we were seniors. It soon became our duty to see that the freshmen have the proper reception into our midst. Mr. Neil Richardson, our leader for this year, proved himself capable and efficient. Instead of an initiation, the freshmen were greeted with a general reception at Centennial Park.

Two years have passed since we first launched out into the great unknown sea of college life. These years have been filled with many happy experiences mingled with some less happy ones.

Today finds us near the close of our college days in Trevecca. However, we do not intend that our educational careers shall close now. We are looking into the future with expectant hopes. The wide world is waiting for us. We are going forth to face it, and while climbing the ladder of success we hope to win a name of which our Alma Mater will be proud.

COLLEGE THEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT

It is the purpose of Trevecca Nazarene College to train and prepare students of every class for service in the various walks of life, but special stress is placed upon the School of Theology. Fifty-seven students have gone out from Trevecca to various mission fields of the world; several hundred preachers and other Christian workers are now scattered over this country, proclaiming the glad tidings of a full and free salvation.

The courses are well planned to meet all the requirements for ordination in the Church of the Nazarene. Moreover, a young man or woman who is called to the ministry will derive much greater benefit from this preparation than he would in merely taking the course of study at home. Practical work is engaged in by the students while they are enrolled in the department. The instruction and example of Christian teachers, together with the interchange of ideas and the fellowship of the students, are invaluable in preparation for Christian service.

Our theological department is manifesting a steady normal growth which we consider most encouraging. While the college literary work covers but two years, this department has added two years of theological college work, culminating in the Bachelor of Theology degree. At the close of this year the first class will be graduated from the two-year College Theological Diploma Course. May this department ever lift high the banner of holiness, and labor until the King of Kings shall come.

CLASS PROPHECY

My last patient had just closed the door behind her. I breathed a sigh of relief and hung up my white coat carefully. It was already dark and past dinnertime. I hurried home and after having dinner settled myself in the drawing room for a quiet evening. The firelight sent shadows dancing over the room which made things seem mysterious and weird.

I was almost asleep when I heard a noise. I jumped up quickly and there before me stood an old woman. I was too dumbfounded to speak; finally she broke the silence.

"I have come to make you happy," said the old woman hoarsely. "Make one wish."

A million things went through my mind. Finally an idea struck me.

"The Fate of my classmates of '37!" I cried.

"It is granted," she whispered. "Listen carefully, because I cannot repeat."

"The President of the class, Cleon Propps, is a great evangelist and with the help of his faithful wife is doing a great work." I started to interrupt, but she hurried on.

"Adron Hollins is head nurse at the Municipal Hospital in New York City, but is going to resign her position soon, to keep house for Mr. Compton.

"Ah, Rozzell, the genius of the class! He is now Speaker of the House of Representatives of Tennessee, and watch, my dear, he will be candidate for the President of the United States next term. I imagine Frankie Lee will make a charming 'First Lady.'

"Dellmae Everman, the funny girl, is teaching French in the high school of Owens, West Virginia.

"Dear little Earnestine is wielding a rolling-pin and tutoring Richard-sons.

"Eleanor Hardy is teaching piano in the Conservatory of Music in Nashville. She is very successful, I am told.

"Mildred Taylor is Dean of Women at Trevecca, and is making the girls walk the chalk line."

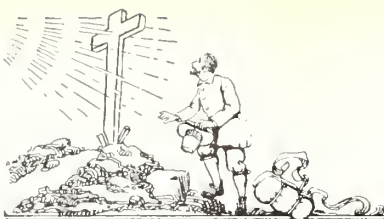

The old woman was getting ready to leave. I stopped her. "But what has happened to Professor Redford, our sponsor?"

"Oh, yes," she murmured. "He is head of the History Department at Columbia University and has written an American History book that will be adopted for the city schools."

Before I had time to thank her, the old woman was gone. I found myself at home. The fire had gone out. I looked at the clock. Three o'clock A.M.! I went to bed, still dazed and stunned by the night's adventures.

FINE ARTS

Art is the soul of the intellect. It is a Divine power which expresses itself in melody, harmony, color, and line.

We cultivate two phases of music—voice and piano—in order that we may enrich our lives and render a more abundant service to mankind. As we develop our voices in the chorus, we strive to interpret not only the structural and technical beauty of music, but also to reveal something of the emotion aroused by the music of the soul.

The work done in the art department bears out the oft-repeated maxim that work which is interesting becomes almost play, and that knowledge gained pleasantly is retained the longest. Some of the varied activities enjoyed are poster-making, craft work, drawing, and painting.

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

*I know of a church at the edge of the town
Where heaven and earth seem to blend;
For within the wide door waits the Christ we adore*

With a blessing for all who attend.

*Then come to the church at the edge of the town
And join with the worshiping throng,
And tomorrow you'll face with a confident grace
And a faith that is steadfast and strong.*

LOCATION AND ADVANTAGES FOR STUDY

On a beautiful hill, off the Murfreesboro Highway and four blocks from the car line, the college overlooks from one side the city of Nashville and on the other sides distant hills and trees, small farms, meadows, greenhouses, flower gardens, and newly-built cottages giving evidence of a growing community. Easily accessible, but at the same time out from the city and thus beautifully surrounded, the location of the college presents ideal advantages for study and is especially conducive to good health, wholesome study atmosphere, and the encouragement of high scholarship.

BUILDINGS

The girl's dormitory, a large red brick structure of three stories, is a modern building. The reception room is large, the halls are unusually wide, and the sleeping rooms are conveniently arranged; a number of them have private baths.

The dormitory for young men, a modern structure, is a large concrete block building of three stories. It has three roomy verandas, a reception room, student rooms accommodating two to four each, a bath-room on each floor for teachers, and a large bath-room on each floor for students.

The central, or Administration Building, provides offices, classrooms, library, and science laboratories. The buildings are steam heated, lighted by electricity, and provided with other modern conveniences.
