ASB elections slated for April 11

ASB elections are here. In one week, the student body of Trevecca Nazarene College will decide the leadership for the 1985-1986 school year.

Many have responded to the challenge of deciding to make a difference in the life of this college by completing their petitions and running for an Associated Student Body office. The positions that are to be decided are as follows:

President, Executive Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, Attorney General, Vice-Presidents of Social Life, Religious Life, Academic Affairs, Trevecca Intermural Society, and editors of Darda and Trev-Echoes.

Elections are to be held in chapel and outside the cafeteria at mealtimes on Thursday, April 11. Run-offs, if needed, will be Monday April 15.

Spring quarter registration complete and running smooth

Spring quarter registration for 1985 was completed this past week yielding a fairly good enrollment considering the nation-wide decrease that has finally reached the Trevecca campus this past Winter quarter. According to Richard Egnor, Registrar of the college, enrollment is only "slightly behind" enrollment this time last year. After three days, the number of students completing registration has reached 696, which was forty-five behind the total at that time last year. Not included in the figure are the graduate students that are currently enrolled in the Master's program. The total enrollment for this quarter was expected to exceed 750 undergraduates.

National essay contest announced

A national essay contest offering a $10,000 scholarship and three $2,500 honorable mentions has been announced by the Institute of Financial Education.

AAC sponsored games exciting and successful

By James Wilcox
Contributing Writer

With the rise in popularity of the game Trivial Pursuit, Academic Affairs Committee joined with Honor Society to host the First Annual Trevecca Trivia Tournament. The event took place February 1st in the Kinderhaus Annex with fifteen teams participating. The competition was open to any group of 1-4 members, but several of the teams represented clubs (Circle K, Sigma, Civinettes, P.A.'s).

In addition to capitalizing on the popularity of Trivial Pursuit, the sponsorship of local Nashville businesses also contributed equally to the success of the tournament. Baltz Brothers, Blossom Shop, and Kroger each donated $50 to the event. These gifts and the entry fees provided the funds for the $150 first prize and $75 second prize. Beaman Bottling also donated four cases of Pepsi which were distributed for free during the tournament.

As the evening drew to a close the excitement continued. During the semi-finals both Circle K teams were eliminated despite the cheering on of club members. This put the teams of Bob Wankel and John Gunn in the finals. This round was clearly a match of two superior teams. When the dust settled John Gunn, Rachel Gunn, Lisa Gunn, and Art Ratcliffe received the $150 first prize while Bob Wankel, Dave Queen, and Andy Napier graciously took their $75 second prize. By the audience's response and the sportsmanship displayed by the teams, the evening was truly a success.

Academic Affairs Committee and Honor Society wish to express thanks to the tournament sponsors; masters of ceremonies Rick Harvey; and Judges Phyllis Flannery, Barbara McLain, and Annie Stevens. Also, thanks go to all the faculty members who wrote questions for the tournament.

Is pursuit of academic excellence our goal?

By Kelli Bowman
ASB Academic V-P

Academic excellence? Does anyone really know what it means? The by-laws of my committee state that we are "to be the student leaders in promoting a spirit of academic excellence." (Academic Affairs Committee by-laws, pg. 2) I am not sure I know how to do that. You see, what constitutes academic excellence for me may be quite different from what constitutes it for others. For instance, some have mastered the fine art of taking tests. They know exactly where, what and how to study. They enter the classroom with minimal anxiety the day of the exam, sit down and spew out correct answers one after the other. Of course they always get A's especially on objective tests. Then there are the professional paper writers (better known as the kings and queens of "bull"). They can whip papers out in no time flat. They never start until the night before the paper is due but somehow, often with little effort, they manage to get it in on time. The paper comes back with a superior grade and many times is praised for its scrutinizing research and the "obvious" hard work that was put into its preparation.

The things I have just mentioned are little more than cognitive talents, just like athletic or musical talent. We do not all have them and it is probably a good thing. To me academic excellence is not indicated by talents or grades but by the quality of learning that is attained.

A person may make an A on a test by answering all the questions correctly, but has he really learned and delved deep into the material being studied. Or has he temporarily memorized answers that will be long removed from his memory bank two days after the test is taken? And when he gets that paper back with a B+ grade that he threw together the night before, does he count this as an accomplishment or does he feel cheated because the learning experience intended by the assignment was not met to its fullest. Whether we realize it or not — if we are not learning what we are studying we are being cheated.

True learning is a process that requires active participation and passion. We cannot just sit at our desks and wait to be taught. We must be actively involved — by giving it our best shot. In my opinion this is academic excellence.

Granted, we all have varied learning capabilities. Some must try harder for better grades than others; however, those who try the hardest, no matter what grade they receive, are truly reaping the full benefits of education. Education is meant to challenge us and bring out the best we have. When this is achieved, we cannot help but learn. So academic excellence comes from within us; there is no scale of measurement or standard goal we must reach to acquire it. Academic excellence comes from doing our best and getting the very most out of our education.

The only measure is our conscience.

Dear Editors,

I am a commuter student and have been here at Trevecca for some time. I feel I am an outcast from the mainstream of Trevecca society. Many elections and sign-ups for events take place at meal-time around the cafeteria. I am never around there at most of those times. One quarter I arranged my schedule so I could eat and socialize in the cafeteria some of the time. I did not eat enough meals to justify buying a meal ticket and it did get expensive beyond what I could afford. It seems faculty and staff get a break on the price of their meals. Why can't the commuters get a break? Are we different? Yes, we are the Trevecca untouchables.

The food committee has talked about giving commuters a break on meals, but that's all they do is talk. Why should they care? They all have their own meal tickets.

So commuters voices can be heard by SGA, how about a position for a commuter student in the Student Government Assembly or are we not good enough. Are commuters needs being heard or does Trevecca's students and staff have eyes but don't see and ears but don't hear.

Opinions expressed in editorials and letters are not necessarily those of the students, faculty or administration of Trevecca Nazarene College, or the Trev-Echoes, staff, but are those of the author.

Rules, rules, rules, and more rules! Do you ever get the feeling that we live in a very legalistic community with rules that who knows who made up? If so, please listen, for your own sake.

Let's think for a minute about the purpose of rules. We're always told that rules are made "for our own good." I think I agree with that statement. But I have noticed that in our rulemaking process, the rules are made for those individuals who cannot (or at least do not) make limitations for themselves. The rules are made for those who look for loopholes and ways to get by without responsibility for their actions. It seems like our own campus, the most gripes are made about rules that affect seemingly innocent people. Well unfortunately, the innocent do sometimes have to deal with rules that were initially created for those who really are not responsible people. It really does not seem fair.

So practically, what can be done? Can students do anything that will really make a difference in our guidelines. The answer is YES YOU CAN. Your Student Government is now in the process of revising our ASB Constitution for next year. The Constitution is the Student Body's rights and privileges as well as duties of SGA. This past quarter a great number of students were asked to participate in SGA Super-Sub Committees which revised the present handbook guidelines. This was a great success and we have terrific involvement of the student body. If you did not have a chance to be involved in these, you still have the same opportunity to do so. If there is anything in the guidelines that you think can be improved upon, please, take the time to write down the page number in the handbook and what you think should be changed and send it to me. You really can have a voice in what take place in our rulemaking process. But, you have to care enough about it to write down your ideas. I assure you that we will present them in the best possible way and thoroughly consider what you say. Your proposals will go through one subcommittee and then on to Community Living Council which are both composed of students, faculty, and administration. We will let you know by mail what happens to your proposals.

We really do need your help. Everyone reviewing the guidelines is striving to make the best and most fair guidelines possible. We want to try to meet your expectations. But we cannot read minds and just words of complaint are not useful unless effort is made to change by the submitting of purposeful ideas. We are here to represent you and your ideas and I mean that! We want so much to help you. So please take a minute to sit down and review your constitution and guidelines.

This is second in our series from Student Life Committee to let you know what is happening in your Student Government. Let us know what you think as soon as possible (send to Box 427).

Sincerely in Service,
Melinda Nabors

Words from the library

Sting does it. Bill Cosby too. Bette Midler even does it. And so does Baryshnikov. They all read.

This year these celebrities have stepped down from center stage and into America's libraries to lead a nationwide celebration demonstrating that we are A Nation of Readers.

Yes, people still read. "The pundits of every age have been quick with premature obituaries," wrote Librarian of Congress Daniel J. Boorstin. "The obvious example in our time is the common prediction that television and the computer will displace the book, that a nation of watchers will cease to be A Nation of Readers."

But, in fact, computers and television have probably increased the number of readers. How many computer books were there five years ago? Today, you need a computer to keep track of all the titles. And while millions may have been glued to the tube for television presentations of Shogun and Lace, the next day droves went out to libraries and bookstores in search of the books.

"We are A Nation of Readers," says Mrs. Ray Thrasher, Director of Mackey Library. "Mackey Library usage is up. Magazine subscriptions are up. Newspaper readership is on the rise. In the last five years the number of readers has increased and your Library circulation has increased 69.8% for all materials."

"I think that the illiteracy rate and the alarming conclusions of the National Commission on Excellence in Education are cause for concern," Mrs. Thrasher continues. "But I believe that libraries will lead the undereducated and the illiterate in an exodus from a nation at risk to A Nation of Readers."

April 14-20, 1985, is National Library Week, sponsored by the American Library Association. It's the perfect time to learn more and enjoy more by reading and using your library. "For reading is not simply a skill or a consumer activity. It is an experience and it has been part of our whole nation experience," wrote Dr. Boorstin.

This National Library Week, take the time to reaffirm your citizenship in the Nation of Readers.

FORENSICS WINS 50 TROPHIES

Knear leads Trevecca's Forensics Team to Nationals

By Joe Bell
Staff Writer

Rebuilding after a year in which a mostly junior and senior team won over fifty trophies, coach James Knear led the Trevecca Forensics team to an excellent year, winning six individual awards and one team award, with five team members going to the upcoming National Forensics Association tournament in April.

Forensics is the term applied to intercollegiate speech competition. In it, speakers either give a prepared address on some topic, interpretively read poetry, prose or a cutting from a dramatic event, or give a speech with limited preparation time on a topic they are given. Their opponents come from all over the nation, and include people in their first year of competition as well as some who have competed not only all throughout their college careers but also in high school. It is very tough, but like many competitions, is also a place where good friends are made that can last a lifetime.

This year's team and 8 novice, or first year, competitors (Joe Bell, Kent Buess, Jennifer Buttrey, Joel Calkin, Cliff Carter, Suzanne Diffenderfer, Jeff Higgins, and Jerry Young) with only one team member, Tim Johnson, with any previous experience.

The Forensics, or speech year, started off in October with the attendance of Jerry Young and Jeff Higgins to a tournament at Tennessee Temple University.

Then, on October 19, about 8 other schools came to Trevecca for our invitational tournament. Not only did all involved have a good time, but our own Kent Buess and Suzanne Diffenderfer qualified for the National Tournament by coming in 3rd in Dramatic Duo Reading.

On November 9, Jerry, Cliff Carter and Rick Quinn went to a Tournament at Appalachian State, finishing respectably and getting invaluable experience.

This January the team, now complete except for Rick, Jerry and Jeff, went to Moorehead State University and came back with two awards, in Impromptu and Extemporaneous speaking. That was followed by a trip to Union University for the Tennessee Intra-state Forensics Association tournament, where Jennifer won with an After-Dinner speech, and a weekend in Washington, D.C. for the tournament at George Mason University where the competition included such schools as Brown University, Old Dominion, Penn State and California University.

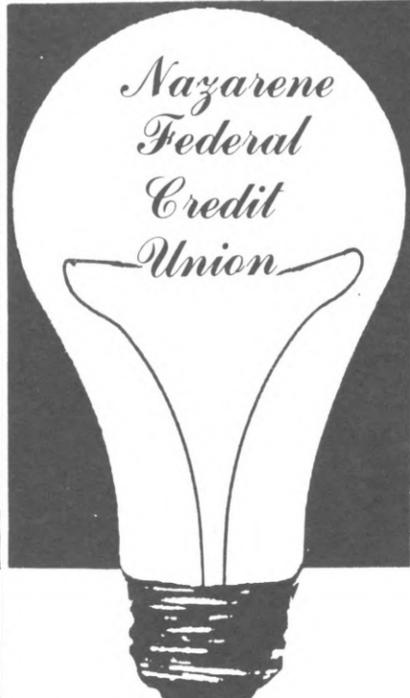

Over spring break Joe, Cliff and Joel went to Fayetteville, Arkansas for the national Pi Kappa Delta Tournament, which included over 1200 students, including Northwest Nazarene College.

The final cap on the regular season came just last weekend when Joe and Cliff went to Georgetown, Kentucky for a Tournament. Not only did they come back with two trophies each, but the pair also outdid four teams of five or more in overall points to take the fourth place team trophy!

Now Cliff, Jennifer, Joe, Kent and Suzanne will be going to the National Tournament April 22nd to compete with students all over the nation in their award-winning events.

The future of the program also looks good. Most of the team will be able to compete here next year, and Coach Knear has had at least one inquiry from an experienced high school student asking about the team and program in general.

We should all be proud of our team and its coach, giving beyond what is required to become better speakers, to give our school more recognition and honor, and to become better servants in the Kingdom.

Trojan baseball in full swing

By Scott Winchel
Staff Writer

After a spring break tour of Florida, the Trevecca Trojan baseball squad continued its winning ways by winning four of five home games.

The Trojans brought home a record of 4 wins 2 losses and 2 ties, after facing an eight game schedule during spring break in Florida. During their stint, Trevecca faced such teams as Cedarville College, Sante Fe Junior College and Akron University.

The Trojans returned home to Tennessee from the sunshine state to face the number nine ranked NCAA division two team from the University of Northern Alabama.

Both teams came out swinging at Trevecca's Jackson field, with UNA collecting a total of 20 hits during the game, and the Trojans mustering 12 hits. UNA's lumber proved too much for Trevecca, as they defeated the Trojans by a score of 17 to 10.

After the major slugfest with UNA, the Trojan squad found the going somewhat easier facing Marion College from Indiana, on March 27th.

Trojan pitcher Andy Humbles had the winning arm as TNC's defense cooled the Marion bats, giving up a total of only three runs. TNC continued its strong offensive showing by collecting nine runs off of Marion, which included five homeruns.

Brad Wood was the key man in the Trojan's eleventh victory of the 1985 season over Lambuth on March 28th.

With the game deadlocked at four a piece in the bottom of the tenth, Wood stepped to the plate and belted a homerun over the left-field fence to end the game. TNC won the game 5 to 4.

The Trojan squad was not fooled in the least by MacMurray College from Illinois on April first. TNC swept a double-header from MacMurray at Jackson field by the scores of 11-1 and 12-4.

Dwight Roe received the win in the first game, which was stopped in the fifth inning due to the ten run rule.

Relief pitcher Tim Bell claimed credit for the victory in the second game after the Trojans opened up the score on MacMurray with a four run fifth inning, keyed by a bases loaded double by right-fielder Dave Donald.

The win over MacMurray ran Trevecca's total season record to 13 wins 6 losses and 2 ties.

Contest Continued

"You Can Save Your Country," is open to all full-time students at four-year colleges and universities, community colleges, and vocational and technical schools. Full-time high school seniors also are eligible.

Essays are limited to 1,500 words. They will be judged on the basis of documentation, originality, clarity, logic and persuasiveness in their presentation of how federal deficit spending affects the country's and the writer's future. Entry deadline is Tuesday, April 23, 1985.

IFE President Dale Bottom said The Institute is conducting the essay contest "to help alert our young people to the people to the problems they will face because the federal government is building up the national debt — and to generate some thinking that could help lead to possible solutions."

Bottom noted that the federal government has amassed $1.6 trillion in debt and currently spends $4.00 for every $3.00 it collects from taxes and other revenues.

"We must tell our elected officials in Washington, D.C., that we don't want to saddle ourselves and future generations with a crushing debt burden," said Bottom in a letter to college presidents.

Essays entered in the IFE contest will be forwarded to Congress.

The contest is being run in conjunction with a nationwide "You Can Save Your Country" campaign backed by the United States League of Savings Institutions.

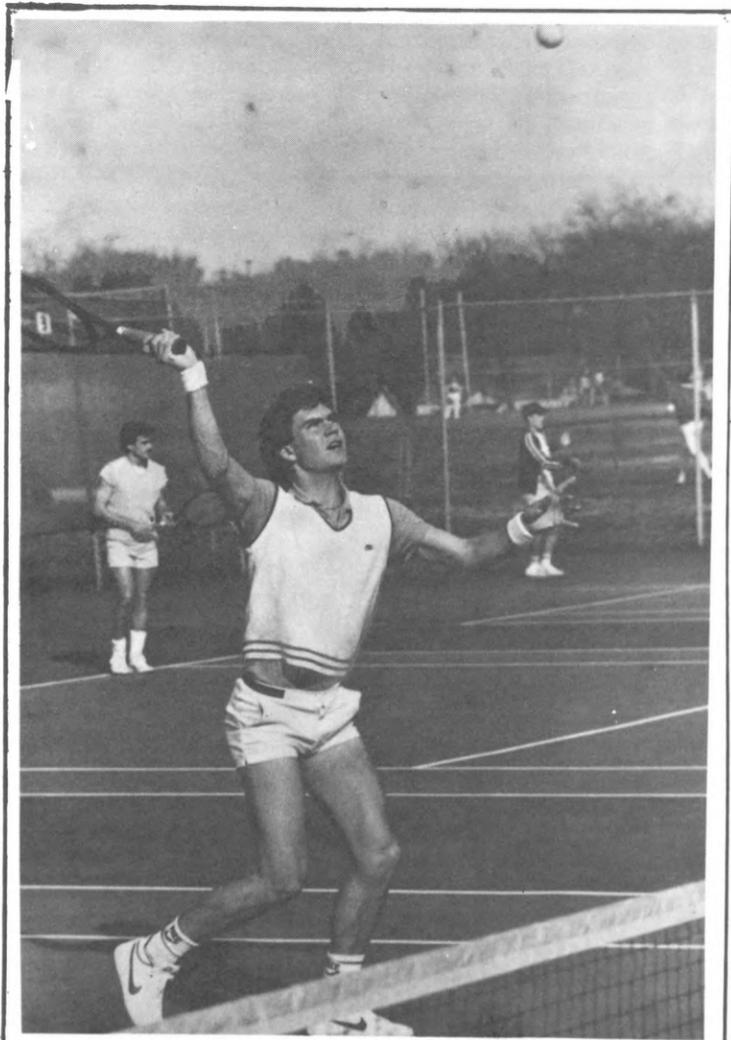

Essays should be sent to "You Can Save Your Country" national essay contest, Institute of Financial Education, 111 East Wacker Drive, Chicago, IL 60601. The essays must be typed, double-spaced on plain white letter-size (8½x11) paper and include the home address and home telephone number of the contestant — plus the name and address of the school. The writer's name must appear on each page of the essay.

Entries must be postmarked no later than April 23, 1985 and received no later than the close of business April 29, 1985.
