New faculty members, buildings, curriculum additions, and the presentation of the report of the Research and Development Council highlighted the Board of Trustees meeting held Tuesday and Wednesday on the campus.

The Council recommendations were accepted with appreciation from the Board by Dr. John L. Knight, chairman. The report, compiled by Dr. L. P. Gresham, outlined a ten-year projection of the college from 1965 to 1975, with recommendations to be acted upon a year at a time.

Curriculum expansions for the 1965-66 school year include offering a speech major, philosophy minor, courses in the new Education and Business Administration department, and additional courses in philosophy, science, psychology, sociology and foreign languages.

Several new faculty members for next year were announced. Larry L. Finger, an instructor at Orlando Jr. College, will be an assistant professor of English. Paul M. Bassett, from Duke University, has his Ph.D. in religion, and is fluent in Latin, Greek, Hebrew, German and French. John A. Knight, now teaching at Bethany Nazarene College, has been named as chairman of the Department of Philosophy, Religion and Christian Education. He will receive his Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University this summer. Ernest W. Moore, a Ph.D. from the University of Texas, will serve as associate professor of education. Elmer Heabertlin, who has his M.Ed. from Xavier University, will be assistant professor of physical education. Trafton F. Williams, who has completed the residence for the Ph.D. in guidance and counselling at the University of Missouri, will be professor of psychology and director of testing and counselling.

Other faculty changes include the return of Dr. and Mrs. Leon Chambers from a year's leave of absence, and the granting of leaves of absences to Dr. Franklyn Wise and Mr. William Jernigan for the coming year.

Named as consultants for Trevecca College are Dr. Stanley Parry, formerly a marketing specialist for the Ford Motor Company and now with the University of Tennessee, and Dr. L. P. Gresham, who is continuing in his present role. The area of Institutional research will be Dr. Parry's field, while Dr. Gresham will

Wake Up!

Why don't our clubs function more effectively? This question has perplexed both the student government and the administration of Trevecca for many years. Is there any way to motivate or encourage them? Or should we just forget them and allow each club to just function at random?

The failure of a club to function, in practically every case, can be traced to lack of proper leadership—or, to be more specific, a president who is not responsible enough to keep his club active. Often the club president, when confronted with this problem, will retaliate by saying, "My members don't take any interest" or "I can't get them to co-operate." At this point, however, he should be reminded that he, as leader of the organization, should possess this ability to keep his members "fired up". If not, then he should step down and give his position to someone else.

Above all the president should be truly interested in his club. He should not view his office as one of honor and prestige but should look upon his position as an opportunity of service to the college and the students concerned. IF THE PRESIDENT TAKES NO INTEREST, HOW CAN ANYONE ELSE BE EXPECTED TO TAKE INTEREST?

The student council is presently taking steps to remedy this situation. Beginning this year, club presidents will petition for their offices. Also The Club Council is now being organized. This council will regulate all activities of the clubs. Representatives to this council will be the club presidents themselves.

These steps will improve the situation in the future. But for now, club presidents—WAKE UP!!

Think-Then Vote

Next week elections for publications editors and business managers will be held. Before the end of the quarter class presidents and council representatives for the next year will be elected.

Serious responsibility rests upon you as you elect these leaders. What determines your vote? The matter deserves your thoughtful consideration, for in the midst of campaign promises, posters, and slogans, it is not always an easy decision to make. Shallow thinking can result in unwise voting. Consider some far-too-typical attitudes:

"I'm not going to vote for her. She's already had positions of leadership. I'm going to vote for someone who hasn't had a chance to do anything."

"He is such a nice fellow. I'm going to vote for him. He hasn't had any experience, but the students all say he is really a swell guy."

It is just as unfair to refuse to vote for a worthy candidate because you think he has "been in the limelight" too much as it is to vote for someone who may be popular, but shows no particular capabilities for filling the office.

Why should someone be elected to a publications staff who has never showed any interest in the publication? Or why should one be a class officer who never attends class meetings, pays class dues, or supports class projects?

Who is deserving of my vote? My roommate? Not necessarily. The star athlete? Maybe not. The outstanding Christian worker? Not always. Who, then?

Let me suggest a few criteria. You are not voting for a clever campaign poster. You are not voting for a persuasive campaign speech, for words are easily put together. You are voting for a person's ability to do a particular job. What are some indications of this ability?

- a. Previous experience and/or interests.
- b. A genuine motive for service, not just a desire to hold a position for the honor which may accrue.
- c. A positive attitude toward the school, its policies and administration.
- d. The ability to obtain student cooperation (publications are the work of staffs and class activities involve willing class members).
- e. Dependability in other areas of school life—this trait carries over into all phases of a person's life. (If he has failed in previous responsibility, watch out!)

Some candidates may not meet all these criteria. If they do not, they should not be elected, no matter how "popular," "friendly," "intellectual," or "spiritual" they may appear to be.

—Barbara McClain

Past, Present, Future

Trevecca has been experiencing its greatest year—physically, academically, and spiritually. Keeping pace with all this progress has been the aim of this year's Student Council. I feel like the goal has been met. A greater sense of cooperation and unity of spirit has been the emerging result.

Next year will provide many new challenges to the college and to its student leaders. The total number in the student body could reach as high as 750. Two new dormitories will be completed and two more should be under construction. The new multi-purpose building should be on its way up. How will STUCO keep pace with such developments?

Plans are already being made to help next year's student body to receive the most benefits from its Student Council. Programs have been set up for each weekend throughout the school year. This early start in scheduling should result in greater variety, better planned activities, and more cultural affairs.

It is my desire to see that more outside entertainment be secured. This can be made possible through participation in the recently formed Nashville Collegiate Exchange Council. For example, we might be able to arrange for our own Barbara McCain to present a concert at Vanderbilt in exchange for a program by a Vandy professor. It was even suggested that TNC's speech department present "The Miracle Worker" to some area colleges.

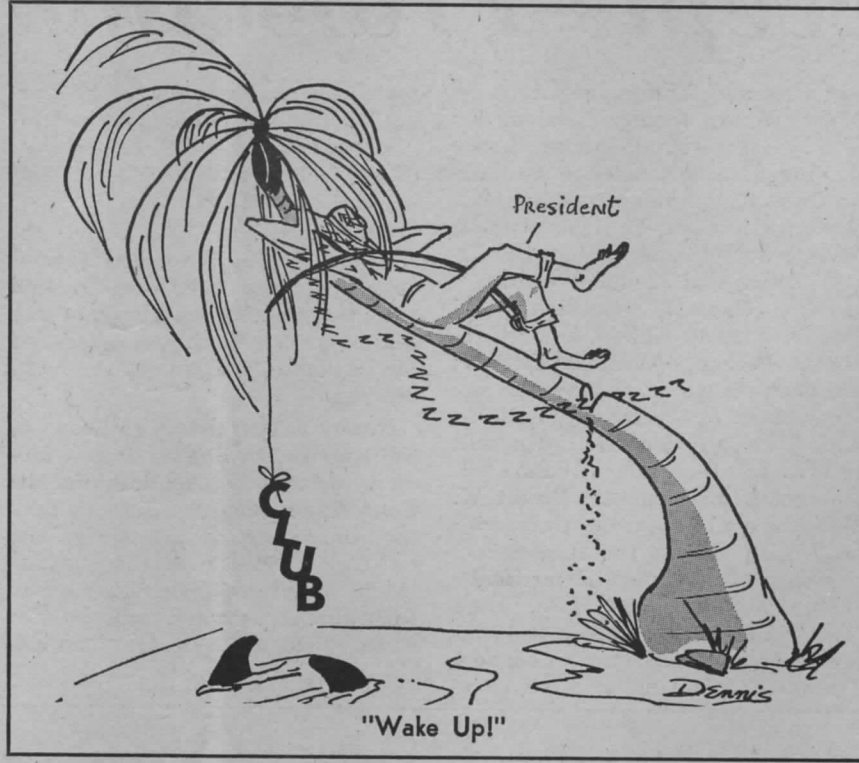

It also has been suggested that we begin an exchange program with some of the other Nazarene colleges. Such an effort was successful two years ago, and did much in aiding in good relations between Trevecca and Olivet.

Efforts are being made to host the Nazarene Student Leadership Conference here at TNC next year. I feel confident that other Nazarene College students will be pleasantly surprised after a visit to Trevecca.

Another organization in which our Council participates is the American Association of Evangelical Students. As in the other such conferences, we exchange ideas with various campus leaders from across the nation. These meetings provide realistic answers to student government problems.

Such plans are all aimed at making TNC the best collegiate institution possible. With the cooperation of every student, faculty member, and friend, we can count on the greatest year in TNC history.

WANTED: ACADEMIC ATMOSPHERE

Trevecca Nazarene College is now in one of the greatest periods of expansion and improvement in its history. College enrollment is expected to double in four years (including the present year); within four to five years from the present the overall value of campus buildings should be at least double what it was before Johnson Hall was built; next year we should have the largest number of new faculty members in the history of the college, and the total number of faculty members with earned doctoral degrees should be the largest in the school's history; and considerable progress is being made in the revision and enlargement of the curriculum.

But there is one noticeable weakness which tends to mar this otherwise bright picture: the absence of a truly collegiate academic atmosphere among the student body. Dr. W. Lee Shevel made reference to this problem in his Student Council Lectures last year.

But an academic atmosphere is something more than a high percentage of students studying their lessons. It is a commitment to, and an absorbing interest in things of an academic nature. It reveals itself as much in the T-Room and out on the campus as in the classroom and in the library. One of the best tests of a student's academic interest is his conversation out on the campus. What does he talk about? On a college campus where there is a healthy academic atmosphere, students discuss history, science, current events, literature. Students who have not been caught and challenged by a vital academic interest discuss and study these subjects merely because they want to pass the courses which are required for the degrees, which is a prerequisite to the careers they have chosen. These students who have not caught the academic vision do a great deal of talking and thinking, but not about intellectual matters.

Some may say that such a vibrant and captivating and absorbing intellectual atmosphere would interfere with the spiritual tone of the campus. But the opposite is true in reality. Spiritual life and revival fires are not found where small talk, intellectual laziness, and lack of purpose are the predominant characteristics of a church or college. Rather, intellectual commitment and a vital academic interest are always found where deep spiritual life and lasting and constructive evangelism flourish.

What can Trevecca do to attain this important element of an academic atmosphere among our students. In the first place, the faculty can begin by setting a better example. Maybe students would follow us more willingly if they felt that we were really going somewhere. In our recruitment of new faculty members, particular attention is being paid to intellectual vitality, and our success in finding such persons is so marked that we feel God has helped us.

Class session and course requirements should be such as to inspire intellectual interest. At this point most of us teachers could do better. On the other hand, student leaders could do a great deal to develop and inspire such interest and to help provide an arena for its expression. Trev-Echoes has done a great deal to raise the academic tone of the campus this year, and for this I personally compliment the Editor and his staff. I am hoping they will do even more in this direction.

But whatever might be the means and whoever might be the agents in bringing about this needed improvement, it is so vital to the future of the College that it must be accomplished. Trevecca must, and will have a campus atmosphere appropriate to an institution of higher Christian education.

BOOK REVIEW

THE UNIVERSE AND DOCTOR EINSTEIN

by Lincoln Barnett

Albert Einstein, has probably been the most important and influential scientific mind since Newton.

The average person knows vaguely that Einstein had something to do with "The Bomb," but beyond that his name is merely a synonym for abstract thought and an acknowledged genius.

With a background of theories Barnett gives a clear and concise, though doubtless elementary rundown of Einstein's more important discoveries and theories. He dwells at some length on the General and Special Theories of Relativity and touches on AI's unsuccessful search for a working Unified Field Theory.

The author brings out the effect of scientific discoveries on current philosophy, particularly in regard to time, the meaning of reality, and the limits of man's knowledge.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

It has been brought to my attention the lack of regular church attendance here at Trevecca. It seems that a lot of students take advantage of being away from home; that their parents are not here to make them go to church.

Some of them find time to go on Sunday night with their date but on Sunday morning they would rather sleep in, while on Wednesday night they just must stay in the dorm and study. True, they make good grades but shouldn't God have first place in their lives? Occasionally when a special program is featured they will find time to attend. Most of these students would go if they were home. As college students, we are supposed to be mature and have disciplined lives.

Surprisingly, some of these students are leaders on campus and are well-known. Aren't leaders supposed to be disciplined? They should set an example for the rest of the student body, but it would not be a good policy for the student body to follow, the way some of them attend church.

Let us as college students make it our goal to attend every church service possible and go expecting to receive a blessing from it, and that the Lord will richly bless us for it.

—A Sophomore

Dear Editor,

Once again election posters have "blossomed" on the campus. The McClurken Building portico is again covered with multi-colored campaign banners. Students are choosing the political aspirant they would like to support. The race is on.

What does a candidate in an election look for in a supporter? By supporter I mean a student who will mark an "x" by that person's name on election day.

As a candidate in the forthcoming election, I feel that I can speak for all of us. First, we want a supporter who is behind each of us because he believes in what we are doing and what we stand for, not because of the way we dress, or talk, or act. Second, we are looking for people who have listened to all sides of the issue, who have weighed what they have heard, and then, join our side. Third, we want supporters who will not talk and complain about the job we are doing if we are elected. No "Good time Charlies" wanted here.

Candidates are human, and may not carry out all of their election promises. But more of their ideals would be accomplished if all the students who voted them into power would remain supporters for the whole year.

NCEC Launches Program For Nashville Colleges

Vanderbilt University, Belmont College, George Peabody College, Fisk University, Scarrett College, Tennessee State, David Lipscomb College, and Trevecca Nazarene College—all Nashville colleges, are anxious to end the trend of leading separate campus "lives."

These colleges have recently shown a mutual interest in an attempt to end this trend by forming the Nashville Collegiate Exchange Council. This group presently includes two representatives from each of the colleges mentioned above. Trevecca, one of its most active members, is represented by Mary Blume and Dick Bailey.

Aims of the Council include: exchanging ideas on student government projects, discussing problems of student government, encouraging closer ties and understanding among schools, communicating and exchanging campus programs and coordinating, and/or co-sponsoring activities among the schools involved.

The main accomplishment for this year's work of the council will be to produce a pamphlet by this summer to be available to the college freshmen of fall, 1965. The pamphlet will feature the participating colleges and give certain information about each.

One of the goals the Council's members hope to achieve next year is an arrangement for student discounts in Nashville retail stores. A calendar, showing activities on these college campuses throughout the year, is also included in the Council's plans.

Trevecca's representatives to NCEC have enthusiastically expressed that TNC will benefit from these meetings. One idea which has already been presented to the Student Council is the organization of a "board of presidents." The members of this group would include the presidents of departmental clubs. The purpose of this board would be to stress more active functioning of the participating clubs.

Officers for 1965-66 will be elected May 9, which will be the last official meeting of this school year.

Spring Concert Given May 8

The annual spring concert will be held next Saturday evening, May 8. Sponsored by the Fine Arts Department, the program will feature the choirs and brass ensemble of the college. It will be at 8 o'clock in the McClurkan auditorium.

The Treble Tone Choir, the Men's Glee Club and the A Capella choir will each present a group of four or five secular numbers, including patriotic songs, love songs and novelty numbers. The brass ensemble will play two numbers, and the program will be climaxed with an arrangement featuring the combined choirs and instrumental ensemble. Mr. Unruh, Mr. Van Hook and Miss McClain will be the directors, and Jeanne Thrasher and Mrs. Sylvia Dodson the accompanists.

The concert is formal, and annually attracts a number of Nashvillians as well as out-of-town friends and relatives of the students.

Board

serve as advisor to the administration.

The Board acted on three major buildings during their meeting. Their action included a zone-wide financial program for the construction of the Religion and Life building, a multi-purpose chapel, gym and classroom building; approval of a general classroom building that will be used to house several departments, including science; and approval of plans for new dormitories.

Other items of business taken up by the board were the estimate of 1400 students attending Trevecca by 1975; a current operational budget, not including new buildings, of approximately $700,000 for 1965-66; the addition of 4200 volumes to the library, bringing the total to 32,200; and providing faculty fringe benefits, including (on a 50/50 basis) major medical and disability insurance, group life insurance, and providing a retirement program.

Of major importance to students is an item calling for $28,000 to be used for scholarships in the next school year, and sizable increases for the years to come.

Professor H. Ray Dunning, new on Trevecca's faculty and head of the Department of Philosophy, is interviewed.

Dunning Comments On Academic Features

By JOYCE STEPP

Usual comments from students in a certain professor's classes include: "hard but good," "a great thinker," "really knows his subject," and so on. When meeting him one is immediately struck by his depth of thought, and easiness of expression. This new professor at Trevecca, head of the Department of Philosophy, is H. Ray Dunning.

He is a native Tennessean and earned his A.B. degree at Trevecca, his B.D. degree at Nazarene Theological Seminary, his M.A. degree at Vanderbilt University, and has completed residence for his Ph.D. at Vanderbilt. His doctorate will be in theology. Not only is he working on his doctorate, but he is engaged in writing. He is the author of two volumes, Search the Scripture, a commentary on the New Testament, and is writing one volume of an Old Testament series. He is writing in the new Beacon Commentary (Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai), and is the author of Our Standard of Conduct.

Not only is he a teacher and an author, but he is also a pastor. He is now pastoring the Pine Hill Church of the Nazarene at McEwen, Tennessee.

Asked what he thought about the academic standards of T.N.C. in comparison to the time when he was here as a student, he replied, "Interest in learning is not nearly as keen." The reasons he cited for this was that the average age level was higher in the past; therefore the students had more purpose and need to achieve than the younger students do now. Another reason he gave for a lack of vital interest in learning was that there is "more social pressure to promote and not fail students than ever before." He believes that the answer lies in "challenging a student to greater degrees so that his incentive to learn will be self-motivated." He pointed out that if this challenge fails to spur the pupil, then the teacher is almost automatically forced to increase the quantity of general surface work, because the student fails to study in depth. He said, "It is always consistent with Christian standards to hold the highest intellectual standards possible." He believes that the future curriculum changes of expanding many courses will "help in the fragmentation of interests, and therefore, encourage a better academic standard."

Prof. Dunning and his wife, Betty, have three children: William, 11; Dennis, 9; and Joy, 7.

One senses in Prof. Dunning a quiet, meditative mind which thinks logically and clearly.

Students Practice Teaching

By SHARON CALLIHAN

Every quarter of the school year Trevecca campus is filled with another crop of young student teachers nervously ready to try their wings at the dreams that are finally beginning to be a reality.

All of TNC is always very aware of the first of the quarter of these young teachers when they begin excitedly telling each other about their classes. Student teachers' roommates find they must hear all about each day's activities of the student teachers through such comments as, "I got to teach for forty-five minutes today!" "Those little characters really were mean today! They fussed, talked, and had two fights!" and "One of the children gave me a love note today!"

Mary Stanistreet, who student-taught during fall quarter, told that one little girl, who had been told to read what was to be done, said, "Miss Stanzastreet, I already read the constructions!"

Jan Osborne asked one of the little girls in her class what kind of dog she had. The little girl, Amanda, said, "He's a female!"

A certain little boy in Margaret Gordon's third grade class winks at her and tries to hold her hand.

Syble Jones talked about her "little boys and girls" and we were quite surprised when we learned that those "children" were high school students, many of whom were larger than she.

Pam Dinkins, who wore a V-necked, "sling-shot" jumper to her sixth grade class one day, heard a little girl say, "She has her dress on backwards."

Student teachers' experiences range from humorous to heart-warming to hysterical, but all prove to be ever-remembered and helpful to those brave souls who pursue education, an ever-challenging and rewarding field.

CIRCLE K PROMOTES STUDENT ACTIVITIES

The Circle K Club is rapidly becoming the most active club on campus. Organized only about two months ago, this club has already undertaken several projects. Work projects included the raking of the library grounds and helping to put together the CIRP report. In connection with the all-school play, Circle K provided ushers, traffic directors, and refreshments for the members of the cast.

The "dunking machine" which will be on campus next week will serve a dual purpose. Not only will it provide entertainment for the students, but it will also serve as a fund raising project for the club. Funds from the "dunking machine" will be used for a worthy project which will benefit the college.

Next on the list in the line of service projects is to provide "car parkers" for the Junior-Senior Banquet. Circle K is also investigating the possibility of installing a three-hole chip-and-putt golf course beside the McClurkin building on the private drive. This course will be free and will be open to all students and faculty members.

All of Circle K's activities are not work, however. Social activities include a banquet during the spring quarter, trips to the Kiwanis luncheons downtown, and various types of entertainment at the weekly meetings.

Three men students were voted into the club this quarter on the basis of scholarship, leadership, citizenship, and religious activity. They are Cecil Cook, Marshall Singletary, and Carl Taylor.

John Sugg, a senior member and vice-president, feels that "all our activities are undertaken for the purpose of furthering the goals of our college and the student body."

A CAPPELLA INVADES JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

Friday morning while most of the campus slept, the A Cappella Choir boarded "Old Goldie" and departed southward for an Inspiration Invasion. The assistance of some talented people was needed: Miss McClain, Dianne Peters, Harris Jamison, Paul Johnson, Phil Thrasher, Jim Knight, Larry Sherman, and Dave Erickson. We arrived in Dublin, Georgia with just enough time for supper before the service.

You've probably heard of Subconscious Suggestion. We have an authority on the subject. Linda Deason convinced herself that the bus was leaving an hour later than Papa Andy said it would. That day's trip to Jacksonville was punctuated by one unforgettable rest stop! During it, Sylvia Jamison met a friendly turtle which made himself right at home with her. We arrived in Jacksonville, noted because it is the famous home of Karen Dean, and headed for the beach. Various activities occupied different members. Judy Ross took a memorable ride on the Octopus. Miss McClain pulled the "innards" out of fishes. Lynda Arender's beauty caused quite a misunderstanding. Phil Thrasher arrived back at the bus soaking wet, but no one knows what caused his "dampness."

Returning to the church after a wonderful afternoon, we had a delicious supper. The service at Central Church of the Nazarene was a spiritual experience for every choir member.

The next day we separated into trios, quartets, and groups and visited ten churches—all in the Jacksonville Zone. From the reports received, everyone had successful services: successful from the aspect of presenting Trevecca and most of all, successful in the being blessed with the Divine presence.

Rushing ourselves, we left Jacksonville immediately after lunch. During that long ride to Langley, S.C., we discovered A Cappella's answer to the Chuck Wagon Gang: Carl Taylor, Paul Johnson, Phil Thrasher, and Jim Knight.

We arrived in Langley, home of John Powell, just in time for the service. We had another great service there, and the people were very responsive. The church provided a good meal afterward. Famous words heard there: "Who is Jim Tenderfoot?" Then with the expert guidance of Uncle Bill and the air-conditioned Trailways Bus we headed home. Someone said that there are 121 ways to be uncomfortable on the back seat. It is a fact proved by Gary Simmons and Priscilla Jones. We arrived in Nashville at 6:00 A.M., "refreshed" and "ready" for another week at TNC.

Stuco Reports

By LUCY BARNES

"April showers bring May flowers and Student Council reports!" April and May are exciting months for student leaders as well as for the entire student body. During this past week, Dick Bailey very adequately represented Trevecca at Asbury College at a conference of the American Association of Evangelical Students. It is our desire to join the AAES in the near future, as we feel it would be profitable to us at Trevecca to be able to learn of and exchange ideas with religious institutions of higher learning other than those of our own denomination.

Next week Jim Knight, Phil Thrasher, Kathy Newton and Mary Blume, accompanied by Dr. Wise, will attend the annual Nazarene Student Leadership Conference at Olivet Nazarene College. At this time, there will be opportunity to discuss present problems on our campuses, to introduce new thoughts, and to gather information on various plans now successfully working at different schools. It is our intention, while at this meeting, to arrange for next year's NSLC to be held at Trevecca.

We are sure you are aware of the coming election, which will be held on Wednesday, May 5. This election will be conducted as most previous elections, using the ballots and ballot box. Please exercise your right to vote! The offices to be filled through this election are of vital importance to the school, and we urge you to seriously consider your choices.

The second week in May is the time designated for our Spring Revival, sponsored by the Student Council, with Rev. William Strickland as the evangelist. We are looking forward to a week of real spiritual blessing and uplift.

Seniors Take Comprehensives

Oral comprehensives are being given to seniors at Trevecca, Monday, May 3 through Friday, May 14.

Each senior who expects to graduate in June or August is required to have two oral examinations—one in his major field of study and one in his minor field.

Each examination consists of a one hour session in which the senior is evaluated as to his knowledge and appreciation of his major and minor areas.

General comprehensives were given March 10 in the form of the Graduate Record Examination. This examination included questioning in the areas of social sciences, humanities, and natural sciences.

SENIOR CLASS

The 1964-65 Senior Class is staging an all-school fishing party tomorrow morning, Saturday, May 1, 1965, from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. It will be held at Pine Springs Resort, a private lake near the city airport.

Les Farthing, chairman of the committee in charge of the outing, announced that the cost will be $1 per person. Included in the fee is the cost of renting equipment and food that will be provided. Boats will be available for those who would like to use them.

Transportation will be provided both to and from the lake. Anyone interested in taking a carload to the lake will be permitted to go free. Any student interested in making such arrangements should see Les Farthing.

The fishing party is provided by the Senior Class so that the student body might have some good fun before exams and other taxing events take place at the end of this quarter. The class sponsored a "car smash" winter quarter, an event along this same line.

Major contender for the "Class of the Year" award, the Senior Class is sponsored by Dr. Homer Adams. Miss Suzanna McManus is the class president.

TREBLE-TONE CHOIR

It must be springtime! We Treble-Tones have been practicing for several weeks now for the upcoming Spring Concert. Also during the month of May, all three choirs will be making a recording. The Treble-Tones will be accompanying the A Cappella Choir along with the Men's Glee Club on several songs—mainly the "Hallelujah Chorus."

The Treble-Toners are planning a social for Saturday, May 22. We will have an outing at one of the parks here in Nashville. This will probably be a girl-ask-boy affair.

On the last Sunday in May, we will be presenting our choir tour program at College Hill Church. This will be our last time together this year and we hope it will be one of the best.

KAPPA SIGMA PI

This Saturday night Kappa Sigma Phi will sponsor an All-School Weiner Roast at Shelby Park. All those interested in attending should see either Jan Milby or Nancy Carter, and plan to meet in front of Johnson Hall at 6:30 p.m. Transportation will be provided and the cost is $.50 per person.

During the latter part of May, the club will have an Art Exhibit. This exhibit will consist of both paintings and sculptures which have been displayed previously at the Parthenon.

FRESHMAN CLASS

Last Saturday night, April 24, the Freshman Class sponsored the Saturday night program. The class presented the film "The Enchanted Forest." Taking into consideration that the choir was gone, there was a very good representation. The class wants to thank all those who attended.

"Does anyone want to buy a bar of the World's Finest Chocolate?" was the question many people heard last Saturday morning when several groups of freshmen went around downtown Nashville selling chocolate. The chocolate is still on sale; so, freshmen, get busy and sell it! Some lucky freshmen are still eligible for the prizes—so keep on selling!

SOPHOMORE CLASS

This is the time of the year when spring fever gets many people down, but the Sophomore Class has not been affected by this "dangerous disease." We are working and planning activities for the remaining month of the school year. Among the activities now being planned, are a program which will be presented May 22 under the direction of Kay Frey, a picnic and time of recreation for the Sophomore Class and the completion of our class project.

For these and other class activities we need the support of each class member through cooperation and class dues. Sophomores, if you have not paid your class dues for the spring quarter, please do so as soon as possible.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Men's Glee Club will have a party tomorrow night. The fellows plan to meet at Shelby Park for a softball game. This should be an interesting contest with the 1st and 2nd tenors pitted against the basses and baritones. The outcome of this should be interesting. Following the game will be a picnic. Several took pictures on choir tour and these will be shown after everyone has filled their capacities.

The Glee Club is excited about the record they are to cut this quarter. We have been working on several numbers for this album as well as the numbers we will do for the Spring Concert. We feel this record will be another step added to the progress the Men's Glee Club has made this year.

The softball games this year have been a good bit closer than in the past. Several of the games have been decided by one run and no team has won by a larger margin than three runs. This shows better defensive play.

Each team this year is blessed with some fine infielders. The Betas have one of the best in third baseman Don Webb. He plays the hot corner like a pro and it is hard to get a ball by him. He has a strong accurate arm to go along with his fielding ability.

The Deltas can brag about Barney Baggott and Mark Greathouse. Baggott covers a lot of ground at shortstop and plays almost errorless ball. He is adept at making an unassisted double play or going deep in the hole to throw out a runner. Greathouse covers the bag well at first and his ability to make the big stretch adds to his value to the team.

Charles Woody and Lester Byington are the Alphas top infielders. Byington plays a good game at third and, like Webb, has a strong arm. Woody plays shortstop and plays it well. His skill comes in catching pop flies that could fall in for base hits. He has an accurate arm and covers a lot of ground. With these kind of infielders the outfielders don't get much of a chance to show their skill.

Delta 3—Alpha 1

In one of the better games of the still young season, the Deltas defeated the Alphas 3-1 behind the strong pitching of Jim Hendershot.

The Deltas scored first in the 3rd as Forman walked, went to second on a wild pitch, and scored on Dollar's line drive single to right center. Dollar drove in Baggott with what turned out to be the winning run in the fifth stanza. Minnix drove in Cline with run number three in the seventh. The Alphas last-ditch effort in the bottom of the seventh scored one run with Byington and Wheaton doing the damage.

Dollar and Byington each went 2 for 3 to lead their respective teams.

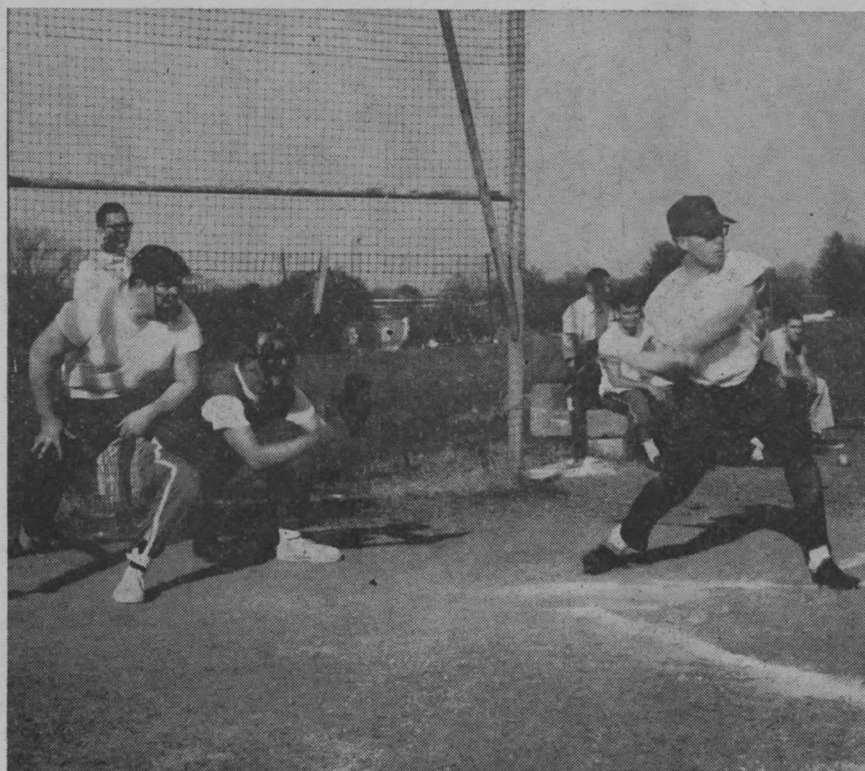

Even though the Alphas are still without a victory, they are certainly the team to watch for the remainder of the season. They are an improving team and are capable of beating either of the other teams on a given day.

Beta 9—Delta 8

Captain Larry Knight powered a long triple with one out and two on to give the Betas a come-from-behind 9-8 victory over the Delta nine. The stage was set for the dramatic blow by two errors and a double by Jim Knight. This is the third consecutive game in which Larry Knight has been responsible for the winning run.

Hitting stars beside Larry Knight (3-4) were Jim Knight (3-4), Deltas' Baggott (1-2) and Berck (1-2).

The winning pitcher was Horton and the loser was Hendershot.

Carl Taylor swings at a Hendershot offering as Bob Say and Umpire Gene Cook join the action.

RACE TIGHTENS AS SEASON PROGRESSES

Betas 7—Alphas 6

In what could be the longest game in TNC history, the Betas came from behind twice to defeat the Alphas 7-6. The game lasted twenty innings.

Early in the game, the Alphas had men on second and third but were unable to score. After that no man for either team passed second base. The next afternoon it was decided to play seven full innings. The Alphas scored three in the first (or 14th) off Henry Horton with hits by Woody, Hickok, Bays, and Byington. The Betas in turn loaded the bases with none out against Mills, on a hit by Taylor and walks to Horton and Cobb, but were only able to score one run. In the second, Jim Knight singled up the middle, the ball getting past Bays, and Knight came all the way around. Lester Byington hit a long wind-blower home run in the Alphas' half of the third to make the score 4-2. The Betas tied the score in the sixth. Then the Alphas added two in the top of the seventh on a walk, an error, and Bob Duncan's hit. But the Betas were not to be denied. Milam on base on an error, Taylor scored him on a shot up the middle, Horton sent him home with a base hit, Horton went to third as Webb got on with a hard drive to the third baseman who could only knock it down. Jim Knight was walked intentionally and Captain Larry Knight bounced a grounder slowly to third and Henry Horton beat it home for the winning run, putting the Betas all alone in first place with a 2-0 record. Hitting stars for the marathon were Byington (2-8), Bays (2-9), Taylor (4-10), and Horton (4-7). Fielding gems were turned in again by Don Webb and Charles Woody.

Beta 6—Alpha 5

The league-leading Beta nine, going into the last inning with a 6-3 lead, held off a determined drive by the Alphas to win their fourth straight game 6-5. Good hitting was the order of the day as several players contributed to thrill a large crowd of onlookers. One highlight of the game was Don Webb's home run that bounced through the door of the new men's dorm being constructed in deep center field. Leaders for the victors were Webb (4-4) and Nicholas (3-4).

The Alphas, playing well in a losing cause, were led by Hickok (2-3), Byington (2-4), Bays (2-4) and Snodgrass (2-4).

Delta 2—Beta 1

The defending champion Deltas dealt the Betas their first loss of the season 2-1 as Jim Hendershot pitched a one-hitter. The Deltas scored two runs in the second inning as Mark Greathouse walked and scored on an error that allowed Jim Hendershot to get on base. Wayne Dollar came up and poked a double into left and Hendershot scored to make it 2-0. The game progressed this way until the fourth inning. Don Webb walked to lead off the inning. Larry Knight came up and got on as the Deltas erred on an easy double play ball. This allowed Webb to score which made the score 2-1. Henry Horton was the losing pitcher, but pitched well enough to win as he allowed only two hits. This is the best game that has been played this year and indicates that there will be a close race for the championship.

With this win the Deltas showed that they are capable of coming up with the big win. Their defense was tight and the pitching was top-notch. This game indicates again that this will be a close race and the winner can't be predicted.

GIRLS' SPORTS

Bill Wade To Address T.A.A.

Participation in sports at T.N.C. by our girls is lagging. The Trevecca Athletic Association recognizes this problem and hopes to solve it next year. Several ideas have been brought forth and out of this should come an excellent program for the girls.

As of now the only well organized sport for the girls is basketball. Interest in girls basketball has been at a peak the last three years. This was capped this year by a game in which the women of our faculty played a game. This is the first time this has been done, and from the interest shown won't be the last. Participation by the girls has been great but they need more than basketball.

There was some interest shown earlier in the year in a powder-puff football program. With a little planning this could be quite successful and enjoyable. It will take some time to get this on the same level as basketball, but it could be done.

Softball is a game that all girls like to play even though they are not too skilled. Our athletic program heretofore has included softball but it hasn't been too well organized. This is not to be fully blamed on the T.A.A. president though. Efforts have been made this spring to get the girls started, but several things have hampered the progress.

A large part of the responsibility for the success of girls athletics falls into the hands of the vice-president of the T.A.A. This position, required by the constitution to be a girl, is very important. It is her job to work closely with the president and to be in charge of the girls athletics. With cooperation between the president and vice-president next year girls athletics should be better organized which should result in better participation.

Larry Knight, president of the T.A.A., has announced plans for the athletic banquet. The banquet will be Saturday, May 15, 1965, at 7:30, and plans are being made for this to be an outstanding evening. This is when the T.A.A. honors those who have participated in football, basketball, and softball this year. Letters and trophies will be given to the athletes. Paul Johnson and Ann Hawkins are in charge of the gala evening.

The speaker for the banquet is Bill Wade, star quarterback of the Chicago Bears. Wade is not only a great athlete, but is an outstanding Christian. He is a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and spends his time in the off-season giving his Christian witness at banquets such as this. Wade, a graduate of Vanderbilt, is known for his clean-cut living and warm testimony throughout the National Football League. He showed his ability in 1963 when he led the Bears to the championship over the New York Giants by scoring two touchdowns.

The speaker is indicative of the banquet that is being planned. Larry Knight and the T.A.A. council is enthused about having Wade as the speaker. It is hoped that 150 people will be present. This is a night that all athletes will not want to miss.

THE MEANING OF SPORTSMANSHIP

By CARL TAYLOR

According to Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, sportsmanship is "skill in or devotion to, sports, especially conduct becoming to a sportsman, involving honest rivalry and graceful acceptance of results." This is a day in athletic competition when many tend to forget what sportsmanship really means. This is especially true among those who have made athletic competition their profession. It is nothing unusual to hear of brawls during or after a professional ice hockey, football, basketball, or even baseball game. Since these are the best known sports in our country, it is only natural that we would think of these first. However, we all remember how over 300 persons were killed during the international soccer match in Lima, Peru between Peru and Argentina. All these lives were lost because one fan was guilty of conduct that was not only unsportsmanlike but boisterous to the point of inciting fans to a riotous pitch. This is just one example of how unsportsmanlike conduct has led to a degrading action by fans. It is good to know, in the face of these facts that this unsportsmanlike conduct is not always the case. Nothing is warmer than a friendly handshake after a good game, or helping an opposing player after a tackle or block, or a short word of apology after a pitch got away. This type of conduct is especially seen in college athletics. In the recent NCAA finals the entire UCLA team walked to the Michigan bench to shake the hand of Wolverine center Bill Buntin when he fouled out. Acts such as this don't go unnoticed to onlookers. This good sportsmanship is not entirely absent in the ranks of the pros. In the opening game of the Eastern Hockey League play-off between the Nashville Dixie Flyers, Southern Division Champs, and the Long Island Ducks,

Northern Division Champs, play was rough and competition keen. Late in the game, with Nashville holding a 4-0 lead, a member of the Ducks accidentally hit a Flyer in the eye and head with his stick. When the Nashville player went down to the ice, his opponent went with him, forgetting about play, and attracted the attention of the referee who immediately stopped play and saw that the injured player was treated. However, there is a decided lack of true sportsmanship today and, unfortunately, this attitude sometimes slips into the games at TNC. What is the abstract something that makes it so important for you as an active participant or fan to exercise at all times the best sportsmanlike conduct? In my opinion, it is the influence of true Christianity that we must exert at all times. In the frantic moments, we simply cannot forget the principles upon which our college was built. True Christianity is practical enough to reach into every phase of our lives, and we must not make an exception of this part of our activity. So, as this softball season progresses with every team striving for the top spot and every player pulling for a winning season, let player and fan alike realize the important role of sportsmanship in our athletic program. But more than this, may we all be truly good Christian sportsmen and play the game of softball as conscientiously as we play the game of life.

ALPHAS SEEK FIRST WIN

The Alphas have had some hard luck this year and as yet haven't won a game. They are currently in the cellar with an 0-4 record. They have lost three games by one run but with some luck they could have won these games. They have the power and a fairly tight infield, but have had some problems in the outfield. The Alphas have four of the top five hitters in the league.

The captain of the team this year is Lester Byington. Byington plays third base and plays it well. He also is the teams' relief pitcher. Byington was batting champ last year and is currently leading with a .475 average. Catching is not as strong as it could be. Bob Duncan and Glenn Wheaton divide their time here. Duncan has a good arm and Wheaton is a good clutch hitter. He is third in batting at .375. Dan Mills is the Alpha pitcher and has had his ups and downs. He is a slow-ball pitcher, but he can be trouble. He has been hit pretty hard this year, and this could attest to the present Alpha record. He is the workhorse of the league, having pitched 41-1/3 innings. Rusty Ross holds down the first base position for the Alphas. He is tall and has the range to cover the bag well. He could help out a lot if he would begin to hit. At second base are two good ballplayers in Bob Snodgrass and Ray Moore. Both of these are good defensive players and they can hit. Snodgrass is hitting .333 and ranks fourth in the league. At short-stop is Charles Woody. Woody has wide range and can field anything. He has a strong arm to go along with his fielding ability which makes him more valuable. He can also hit and is considered by some to be one of the best clutch hitters in the league. He has had trouble getting started but should hit more as the season goes on. Beanie Hickok, David Bays, and George Whitten form the Alpha outfield. Bays plays centerfield, and Hickok and Whitten divide their time in left and right. They are pretty good defensive players, and Bays has hit for a .318 average. Hickok and Whitten are freshmen and should get better.

The Alphas haven't done much yet, but if Byington, Wheaton, and Bays keep hitting, and if Woody starts hitting, they could give the Betas and Deltas some trouble. Mills needs some good defensive playing behind him and he could be tough. Don't count the Alphas out yet.

As I See It

LARRY KNIGHT
T.A.A. President

The midway point of softball season has been reached and things have run much as predicted. The Beta won their first four games, all by the skin of their teeth and finally lost to the Deltas on a close one. Looking at the Alphas' first half season, you'll see that they didn't win any games, but they were very much in every game. The Alphas sport the strongest hitting team in the league, with personnel like Charles Woody, David Bays, Beanie Hickok and Lester Byington. Lester is currently leading all hitters in batting. Fielding failures have probably been the biggest reason for the Alphas failure to win. The Deltas were champs last year, not losing a game, but have not lived up to that mark this year. With strong pitching from Jim Hendershot and good hitting to back him up, the Deltas can be counted on to give the Betas a tough time in the last part of the season. Jim won over the Betas in their last outing, 2-1, on a one hitter. The Betas have not exactly been lucky, but I really couldn't say they have been outstanding. They have probably the strongest pitching staff with Milam, Horton and Johnson. Only in one game have they really done better than their opponent in hitting. I predict a close race for the final half of the season—anyone could win.

May 12, has been set for the T.A.A. presidential election.

Ladies are playing softball every Wednesday afternoon at 4:00. All of you get out and limber up your bones!

Many have been wondering what the basis for earning a Trevecca Athletic letter is. Men must play in at least two sports, and must play in at least two-thirds of the games played. Ladies must play in at least two-thirds of their basketball games. Letters and awards will be presented at the annual T.A.A. banquet, May 15.

Our thanks to Gene Cook who is doing an excellent job of calling balls and strikes for our softball games this year. Having someone to make the big decisions for us really improves the spirit of the game. By the way, all of these extra inning games are really piling up the extra money for Cookie!

I have heard many comments about the much improved attitudes on the athletic field. It is a much better game when we play with a Christian attitude. I'd like to say—"Thanks".
